Secretary of State.

He Passes Away at His Summer Mrs. Lechner Had Mourned Him as Home at Garrison's.

GARRISON'S, N. Y., Sept. 7 .- Hamil-

Hamilton Fish was born in this city on Aug. 3, 1808. His father was Nicholas Fish. a Colonel in the Revolutionary War, the friend of Washington and Alexander Hamilton, after whom the son was named. His mother, a daughter of Petrus Huyvessant, was the lineal descendant and heir of the last Dutch Colonial Governor of New York.

In 1827 he was graduated from Columbia College, and at once took up the study of law. In 1830 he was admitted to the bar, and he plunged into politics immediately.

In It He Said He Would Not Defend His Wife's Divorce Suit.

Judge McAdam, of the Superior Court to-day began the trtal of Margaret Shea's suit for a separation on the grounds of cruelty and abandonment from Edward J. Shea, who formerly managed the New York and Brookly Loan Company. Mrs. Shea is a prepossessing young woman, and was tastly attired. She was married to Shea Aug. 31, 1890. Almost the first piece of evidence pu was a letter she received from her husband, July 3. This contained these words:

"You may hold this as evidence that I have left you. You may sue for divorce and I will not defend.
"This will end my life in hell, as I only believe in hell on earth. Tell a your friends what a oafer I am, and that I liene am to blame. I can stand the publicity."

publicity."
Shea offered in this letter to pay his wife $0 a month.
"Well." said Judge McAdam, having read the letter."I think this about set-tles your case."
Counsel for Shea, to whom the remark was addressed, replied that the letter had been written in passion, and that Shea really wanted to go back to his wife.
The Judge turned to Mrs. Shea and husband.

She replied, "Well, Judge, he has threatened my life so many times toat I am afraid of him."
Judge McAdam decided to hear the evidence, and Mrs. Shea told her story. She related many incidents of her life with Shea, which began with spats, but always wound up with his choking her and threatening to kill her.
The case is still on.

leaving the island a colored seaman jumped overboard.

He was Christopher Homer, aged twenty-three, a native of Curacoa. He had shipped for his first voyage, and was intoxicated, according to Capt. Thompson, when the vessel was putting out to son, when the vessel was putting out to sea.

When a couple of miles out Homer suddenly rushed to the rail, sprang into the sea and started to swim ashore.

The colored people of the island are excellent swimmers, and he seemed to make good progress at first. The sea was rough and he was many times buried from view by the heavy waves.

The steamer continued on its course, and theman finally became a mere speck on the waters. As sharks abound there in large numbers Capt. Thompson is uncertain whether Homer reached shore or not.
